WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.-Judge William

Half of the select community of Short Hills, N J., will be in Justice of the Peace Vreeland's court in Newark to-day to hear the famous dog case threshed out. There will be no cries of "fore" on the Baltusrol Golf Club links, and the caddies will have an easy time of it, for the club will attend in a

Ever since William G. Cullen, a retired business man of Short Hills, emptied the contents of a sawed off shotgun into the pet dogs of his neighbors, Charles E. McWilliams and Ashton Harvey, Short Hills has been aquiver with excitement.

It was in the cold gray dawn of Aug. 3 that the bang of Mr. Cullen's sawed off shotgun startled Short Hills sleepers and brought out on the immaculate lawns a rare assortment of silk pajamas. Two suits of these pajamas were worn by McWilliams and Harvey, the complainants in the case before Justice Vreeland to-day. On that August morning Mr. McWilliams's water spaniel, which he valued highly, went out for a stroll with two fox terriers belonging to Mr. Harvey. A dog whose breed is not recorded, the property of Owen Keenan, accompanied the water spaniel and the terriers.

The hour was 7 o'clock. Pretty much everybody was snoozing but Mr. Cullen. The four dogs frolicked about wherever they pleased until their evil stars led them to Mr. Cullen's lawn. Mr. Cullen, who is an old man, saw them trot upon his close an old man, saw them trot upon his close-cropped grass. When he ran out of a side door with a short shotgun they were all in a bunch, rolling about on the lawn. The range was short when Mr. Cullen pulled the trigger. The gun was so short that the buckshot scattered beautifully, pulled the trigger. The gun was so short that the buckshot scattered beautifully, and the old gentleman bagged the whole four. The roar of the gun woke folks up and filled neighboring lawns with curious neighbors. They saw that Mr. McWilliams's spaniel was dead, that the two terriers of Mr. Harvey were badly hurt and that Keenan's dog had been hit. Mr. Cullen went back into the house, telling one of McWilliams's servants that if McWilliams had anything to say about the matter he should come over to see him. McWilliams went. The interview was somewhat brief and exceedingly sharp. The old gentleman declared that the dogs had been infernal nuisances. Mr. McWilliams said that no man had a right to shoot another man's dog without giving fair notice or at least complaining beforehand of aggression. No compromise was possible.

Mr. McWilliams conferred with Mr. Harvey. One of Mr. Harvey's terriers had died in the mean time. The other, as well as Keenan's dog got well after they picked the buckshot out of it. The pair went to Col. E. P. S. Edwards, agent for the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, and complained to him. Col. Edwards investigated the case and brought suit before Justice Vreeland.

Mr. McWilliams, who is in the towing business with his brother. Charles H. McWilliams, at 1 Broadway, said yesterday: "There is a principle involved in this matter. No man has a right to shoot another man's dog under such circumstances. Mr. Cullen has a lot of valuable flowers but it does not appear at all that stances. Mr. Cullen has a lot of valuable flowers, but it does not appear at all that my dog or Mr. Harvey's terriers had ever scratched these up or trespassed in any way. Mr. Cullen never made any complaint to me. Our lawyers, or those for the S. P. C. A. rather, believe that all legal decisions are in our favor. We are going to fight the matter out, you can bet your boots on that."

Mr. Harvey is a lawyer at 35 Broadway. His views were the views of McWilliams. Both gentlemen were considerably wrought up.

Mr. Cullen had less to say: "The dogs were nuisances. They had bothered me before and I determined to put an end to All three gentlemen are members of the Baltusrol Golf Club as well as other social organizations of Short Hills.

SHOT FOR KICKING DOG. Saloon Crowd Had Too Much Fun With Rustles and One May Die.

Frenzied by the gibes of a crowd in John McCarthy's barroom at Rector and Washngton streets, John Stehl, 23 years old, a farm laborer from Jericho, Conn., fired a shot from a revolver at John Flynn, 25 years old, a laborer of Fourteenth street, Sheepshead Bay, last night, inflicting a wound in his right breast. Flynn was drinking at the bar shortly after 6 o'clock when John Stehl and his brother Joseph, the latter also a farm laborer, working at Cranford, N. J., came in with a shaggy looking sheepdog. The brothers were dressed in overalls, tucked into their boots, jumpers and broad brimmed straw hats. The crowd in the place began to guy them at once. At first the country men didn't seem to mind it.

Then the crowd began at the dog. Some one threw it a piece of bologna from the free lunch counter which the dog grabbed joyfully.

"Get onto the mut," some one shouted out. "Don't you ever feed your dog anything?"

Some one else gave the dog a kick, and in about a second there was a scrimmage. Flynn ran out of the saloon, the two farmhands after him. Outside, John fired a shot at him, the bullet entering his left breast and coming out of his back. He was carried into the back room of the saloon, and when William Burke, the bartender.

The dog that caused the trouble was also locked up in the police station and will be taken to court in the morning.

SIX RIVAL FOLEY BABIES. Likely to Make a Spirited Contest of Races

at Foley's Pienie To-day. Big Tom Foley, the only Tammany leader who attends every district organization picnic in Manhattan and some in Brooklyn, will celebrate for himself to-day, when the Downtown Tammany Club of the Second Assembly district holds its annual picnic at Sulzer's Harlem River Park.

Ð

The Foley picnic is usually the biggest in town. Every Tammany district club has promised to send a delegation in automobiles this year. Some of the downtown clubs have hired big sightseeing autos for the occasion. Not only will all the Tammany leaders attend, but some Repub-

Iteans as well.

The women and children of the district will practically have the park to themselves in the afternoon. There is to be a baby contest, in which Foley has offered a $20 gold piece as the prize. The district baby contest, in which Foley has offered a $20 gold piece as the prize. The district is greatly excited over this contest. Particularly is racial rivalry keen as to which of the following babies, all having the prefix Thomas Foley, will have the honor of being crowned finest baby in the district: Ellenbogen (Jewish), Valenti (Italian), Lee (Chinese), Peters (Greek), Dugan (Irish), and Washington (colored).

Meat Strike Not to Extend Here.

It was stated yesterday, both by the proprietors of the packing plants and the local leaders of the meat cutters and butchers' union that the new order of President Donnelly calling out the men in the inde-pendent concerns would not reach New York and its vicinity.

FIERCE BATTLE OF NUCHEN.

Zafran Forces Routed and Port Saved; Synagogue Seats Still Unsold.

The congregation of the Sons of Nuchen of the People of Galicia was rent in twain last night, and during the rending severa heads and many friendships were broken. The trouble began when Marcus Post, president of the congregation, tried to hold a meeting for the sale of seats in the synagogue for the coming Jewish holidays of Rosh ha Shana and Yom Kippur. Post believes himself to be the leader of the tribe, but there's a considerable opposition, under the leadership of Moses Zafran. To advertise the sale of seats the neighborhood of 52 Willett street, where the synagogue is located, has been placarded with signs which read: "Don't buy tickets of those Zafran people,

"Don't buy tickets of those Zafran people, or you won't be able to pray when the holidays come. Marcus Post alone is president of the synagogue; all others are wolves and will tear you. Don't be deceived by marked down tickets."

This was too much for the followers of Zafran, and they marched to the synagogue, a hundred strong, and proceeded to remove Post and his followers bodily.

The synagogue is up one flight of stairs, and as the Tribe of Zafran ascended the Tribe of Post descended. Many a beard was pulled.

Policeman Blah of the Delancey street station sent for the reserves, and these, on their arrival, formed a flying wedge and at last extricated Post from the tangle of combatants and cleared Willett street of the crowd that had gathered to see the LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 1 .- State Revenue Agent Rizot will now press suit against the Southern Pacific for back taxes on a valuation of $315,000,000. It is hinted that the company may reincorporate in another State. Bizot was willing to settle another State. Bizot was willing to settle on a $100,000,000 basis, but the company wanted to pay $30,000 to settle all back taxes and $10,000 annually hereafter.

MORE RIOTING AT E. ST. LOUIS. Carload of Strike Breakers Attacked -Many Injured.

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., Sept. 1.-The rioting late yesterday afternoon was resumed at o'clock this morning, when 500 strikers and their sympathizers surrounded and attacked the First street car bound for the stock yards with a load of strike breakers. The car slowed down at the Vandalia crossing while the conductor ran forward to see if the track was clear.

When the car stopped the crowd of strikers, armed with clubs and missiles of all kinds, invaded it and drove the passengers out. In the fight that followed over a score of person were injured. James Johnson was struck on the head with a stone and his skull fractured. "Doo" Murphy, a negro, was brutally beaten, his left ear being torn from his head. Phil Weaver was shot in the leg, and a police sergeant and two patrolman were roughly handled.

One negro was chased through Pennsylvania avenue and only escaped with his left has the state of a life by taking refuge in a shed back of a stone front dwelling, whence he secaped through the residence. WILLING ALL TO "NELLIE BLY

NEW LAST TESTAMENT OF AGED ROBERT SEAMAN TURNS UP.

Previous Will Gave Her 8500 Only, but It's of No Consequence, Says Her Lawyer—She Got Her Husband's Property in Bulk Before He Died-May Be a Contest

Robert Seaman, president of the Iron Clad Manufacturing Company and husband of "Nellie Bly," once a famous newspaper sleuth and globe trotter, was filed for probate yesterday. The will is dated Nov. 29, 1897, and caused some comment because of its remarkable difference from the will dated Dec. 24, 1895, which was filed for probate on June 16 last. In the latter will Mrs. Elizabeth Cochrane Seaman, otherwise "Nellie Bly," received only a legacy of $500, while the bulk of the large estate went to other legatees, mainly descendants of Robert Seaman.

The will filed yesterday by Robert W. Hardie, as counsel for Mrs. Seaman, bequeathes all the testator's property, real and personal, to his wife, Elizabeth, abso-This will was witnessed by Carl Ebbighausen and Alfred Raab. It names Mrs. Seaman as sole executrix.

The prediction was made in the Surro gate's Court that a severe contest will follow, as the will of 1895 made large bequests to nephews, nieces, grandnephews and grandnieces. Lawyer Hardie said last night that he didn't expect any contest at all, because Mr. Seaman left very little property to be cared for by will. Before his death, Lawyer Hardie said, Mr. Seaman had turned over his stock in the Iron Clad Manufacturing Company and nearly all his property to his wife, and she has it now.

"and the previous will, also, cover only a small tract of land in the Catskills and some personal effects. All told, the property left by Mr. Seaman at his death does not amount in value to more than $6,000. "This is merely a formal proceeding. Mrs. Seaman found this second will among some old papers the other day and brought

"The will filed to-day," said Mr. Hardie, it to me. She didn't care anything about it, but asked my advice about what to do with it. I told her that the will should be filed because it was a misdemeanor to keep a will in possession without filing it.

"This will was drawn up in Weisbaden Germany, while the Seamans were abroad. Mr. Seaman had previously made a will and he sent to this country for it. His attorney wrote in reply that the other will had been destroyed, so Mrs. Seaman says. Thereupon Mr. Seaman drew up this second will, which we filed to-day, Where the other will came from neither Mrs. Seaman nor I know. It makes little difference, anyhow.

Mrs. Seaman, her lawyer said, is automobiling in Connecticut and not worrying much about wills or contests or anything else. Her husband died at 15 West Thirtyseventh street on March 4. He was much older than his wife.

BALTIC IN; CROWD ABOARD. Senator Knox and Sir William Ramsay

Among the Passengers. The White Star liner Baltic, greatest of ocean crossers, brought in yesterday one of the most distinguished and biggest aggregations of cabin voyagers that have ever sailed from an English port. She also had in her capacious steerage 2,060 passengers, including a number of Americans of limited means, and a lot of British immigrants attracted by the ten dollar rate from England.

Among the bunch of 'tween decks Yankees was William Riley, a cattleman, who completed his 204th trip across the sea. Being a native, he was able to leave the pier with his limited baggage, while most of the other his limited baggage, while most of the other falls in the baggage, while most of the other falls in the baggage. The search of this mode of sport after repeated warnings, Indee Riley one morning resorted to drasfolk in the steerage were forced to stay aboard until this morning, when they will be examined at Ellis Island.

Some of the cabin passengers were United States Senator Philander C. Knox, Sir William Ramsay, the great chemist; Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Harriman, the Rev. S. Parkes Cadman, Prof. Osker Liebreich, the German pharmacologist; Dr. and Mrs. W. L. Buil, Frederick H. Beach, Henry W. Bishop, Edson Bradley, Julian De Cordova, Col. Ralph F. Cullinen, Lady Clarke, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Courtney, Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Cross, Harold i. Dimock, Mr. and Mrs. Paul R. Forbes, Mr. and Mrs. i rnest Iselia, Gen. J. M. Hood, J. Chester Hasbrouck, Mr. and Mrs. Rutherford Stuyvesant, Sir W. Lloyd Wise and Lady Wise, Mr. and Mrs. I dward S. Whitney, Dr. and Mrs. Van De Water, Mr. and Mrs. C. 1. Waterbury, Dr. and Mrs. Schuyler Skaats Wheeler, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Winsor and Stephen S. Palmer.

Senator Knox said that in the period of transition between his office as Attorney-General of the United States and Senator from Pennsylvania he had not had time to make up his mind as to what he was going to do with himself between now and the Presidential election. He had been five weeks abroad, he said, and had spent a fortnight of the time playing golf in Scotland. He said that it was not true that he was connected in any way with the Phipps divorce case. He might spend a few day in New York, and then would go to Valley Forge. It was probable, he said, that he might make two or three speeches during the campaign.

Sir William Ramsay was greeted at the pier by a committee of the Society of Chemical Industry, of which he is president, onsisting of Dr. Hugo Schweitzer, Russell W. Moore, Prof. Coblentz and Prof. Hart. The scientist was as democratic as the folks who met him. He is going to Maine to spend a few days with Prof. Ira Remsen of the Johns Hopkins University, and later will visit the Thousand Islands.

He will deliver an address before the society at its rooms at 108 West Fifty-fifth street on Sept. 22 on the "New Problems in Inorganic Chemistry." He will also lecture before the Medical Congress at the St. Louis exposition. He said he thought it would be improper to anticipate the views that he expected to present to the Society of Chemical Industry. They would, he said, embody some of his most recent researches in the field of chemistry.

He was accompanied by a number of the society, which is

He was accompanied by a number of European members of the society, which is an international institution, including Percy Bateson, Keith Benham, Eustace Carey, Dr. Conroy, W. T. Gent, Dr. W. H. Hacking, D. H. Hacking, N. N. Holden, R. W. H. Kane, Max Muspratt, Oliver Riley and Charles F. Ratcliffe.

Prof. Liebriech, who is distinguished for his discoveries in anæsthetics and soporifies, said that he was here chiefly to attend the medical congress at the St. Louis exposition, where he would deliver a lecture on therapeutics. He will attend the meeting of the Society of Chemical Industry, whose committee appointed to meet Sir William Ramsay also greeted him.

Aboard the Cunarder Carpathia, in last evening from Liverpool and Queenstown, were these members of Parliament: Corrie Grant, William R. Cramer and John Wilson. Among the steerage passengers were a

The first Earl Grey was a distinguished British soldier. He came to this country at the outbreak of the Revolutionary War and served on the staff of Gen. Howe. Bravery won him a promotion to a Major-Generalship two years later. As such he defeated Gen. Anthony Wayne at Paoli and Baylor's Corps of Virginia Dragoons at Tappan. He also commanded a brigade at the battle of Germantown. In 1782 Major-Gen. Grey was called home and made a Lieutenant-General. Later he was appointed to command the entire British forces in America. Before he could reach these shores Cornwallis had been cornered and the war was ended. VIENNA, Sept. 1 .- The search for the Princess Louise, of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha who disappeared from Bad Elster, where she was taking the cure, and who was supposed to have gone away with her lover, Mattachich Kegievitch, late Lieutenant in the Austrian Army, has been without result

Through a similarity of names Princess Louise of Coburg is often confounded with Princess Louise of Saxony, who eloped with a tutor named Giron in 1902. American dentist was involved in that scandal, but when he returned to this country a short time afterward he denied the charge emphatically. His relations with the Princess, he said, were of a purely business nature, he having done some work on her teeth.

The Princess Louise of Coburg first met Kegievitch seven years ago at Vienna. He was a poor Lieutenant, with no fortune except his pay as an officer in the army. It is said that she first saw him when he was breaking a horse in the street. Later he became her riding master, and their conduct gave rise to a great scandal, which culminated in a duel between the Lieutenant and Louise's husband, Prince Philip.
Directly afterward Kegievitch received notice to quit the town within two weeks. When Louise found that her protests against this order were fruitless she went to Naples wit', the Lieutenant and lived a year with him in his stepfather's house.

They soon became cramped for funds and bills of exchange were drawn on Louise's sister. In connection with this transaction, Kegievitch was arrested for forgery and sentenced to five years imprisonment in an Austrian fortress. He was also expelled from the army. The Princess was put in a sanitarium, where she broke down.

On his release, in 1902, Kegievitch proaccount.

CHAS. B. SPAHR LOST AT SEA. | WIFE SLAYER NOT REPRIEVED.

EDITOR DROWNED IN CROSSING THE ENGLISH CHANNEL.

Not Known Whether He Fell Overboard by Accident or Committed Suicide
-Latter Theory Scouted—Dead Man Was in Control of "Current Literature." Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN

LONDON, Sept. 1.—Charles B. Spahr, editor-proprietor of the magazine Current Literature of New York, disappeared from the steamboat Prince Albert last night while crossing from Ostend to Dover. Mr. Spahr was travelling in the company of E. W. Ordway of 1093 Dean street, Brooklyn. He was missed when the vessel was about midway of the passage. It is supposed that he was lost overboard but it is not known whether he fell accidentally or committed suicide. It is said that nothing was found among the effects which he left behind to throw any light forwarded to Liverpool, as he was to sail for home on the Cunard Line steamship Aurania next Tuesday.

Mr. Spahr for some time had been suffering from nervous prostration. His friends say he had been much benefited by his holiday and appeared to be well during the voyage.

At one time one of the sailors noticed him in a dangerous position near the stern rail and advised him to move away. His friends, after missing Mr. Spahr, searched the ship for him. At Dover they watched the passengers pass over the gangway and again searched the ship, but without result.

Charles B. Spahr, lived in Kingsbridge Terrace, this city. The news of his disappearance was cabled from Dover by E. W. Ordway of 1093 Dean street, Brooklyn, who went with Mr. Spahr as a travelling companion on a tour of Europe for the benefit of Mr. Spahr's health. They sailed on July 7 for Trieste, arriving there on July 28. They travelled overland to Ostend and took the Prince Albert for Dover;

Mr. Spahr's health had apparently improved, Mr. Ordway cabled, and when last seen he appeared to be in excellent spirits. He had with him only a small handbag which contained nothing of much value and nothing at all to throw any light upon his disappearance.

Charles B. Spahr was born in Ohio and was graduated from Amherst College in 1881. He studied at Leipsic and took the degree of Ph. D. at Columbia. He became a member of the editorial staff of the Outlook in 1886, leaving that magazine last February to become editor-in-chief of Current Literature in which he had a of Current Enterature in which he had a controlling interest.

The responsibilities of his position weighed heavily on Mr. Spahr, and resulted in a nervous breakdown in July, when he gave up his work for a time and went abroad with Mr. Ordway. General Manager Locke of Current Literature said yesterday:

"Mr. Spahr, had no business troubles of Current Literature said yesterday:

"Mr. Spahr had no business troubles or any other reason that would lead him to take his own life and he was not the kind of man to do such a thing. My theory is that he was seasick, for I know him to have been a very poor sailor, and that while sick he pitched over the rail and was drowned by accident. The channel is always choppy at best, and it seems to me that my explanation is not only possible, but highly probable."

Health Commissioner Darlington, who Probable."

Health Commissioner Darlington, who was Mr. Spahr's family physician, expressed the belief yesterday that his death was accidental. "Mr. Spahr." he said, "has a reprieve to William S. Robinson of this own, who is to be hanged on Sept. 12 for the murder of his wife.

Robinson formerly lived in Boston, where he was an active member of a Berkely street church and posed as an evangelist. The Boston police have written to the local authorities that Robinson is one of the slickest confidence men that ever operated in that city. They also assert that he obtained considerable sums of money from Boston church people, ostensibly for charitable and religious objects.

At Robinson's trial the evidence showed that his wife had been murdered in her home last July by blows from an axe. The house was fired and the body burned.
